PHOTOCGRAPHIC PRINTING

SINCE the days of Gutenberg (and even of the Chinese) there has been plenty of improvement in the methods of printing, but no change in the principle. One still prints by pressing an upraised character against something inky and then against paper.

For some time we have given thought to the possibilities of printing by a photo-chemical process of some sort, and now, observe that in England, inventors are discussing experiments to that end.

Anything that would cheapen or make less complicated the printing of the world would be beneficial to an important industry in some aspects to the entire public, but, as usual, with a glittering scheme, there is a flaw. And it took the cub reporter to find it.

Printing is too cheap now. It is too easy to set down ideas on paper and disseminate them. Look at the millions of pages of trash, propaganda, disgusting slop and harmful doctrine that yearly go into the hands of readers. Everybody who has a grouch and the price gets out a book, a propaganda service or a pamphlet.

The number of books, ranging from merely unimportant to actually loathsome, published in the United States in a year is appalling.

With linotypes and high speed presses, the modern newspaper has gone as far as it can toward efficiently making its editions. The world little realizes the number and intricacies of the machines that are used in producing even a small city daily, such as this one. In a great metropolitan plant, the mechanical devices are marvelous examples of the inventor's craft.

Until the people develop senses they do not now enjoy, the printed page will continue the most important means of transmitting ideas. Any progress in methods will have profound effect on civilization, but to put a small, compact machine for making printed matter in the hands of the general public would be to increase the already too large stream of useless bunk and boost the paper market still higher.

YUMA IN CALIFORNIA?

ILL it be Yuma Irredenta?

We do not look forward to bloodshed over the possession of the city of Yuma, and this does not mean we regard Yuma with a low and contemptuous appraisal. California and Arizona, as a result of the decision of a California judge, may now be obliged to go to law over boundaries, just as Texas and Oklahoma did when the settlement of the Red river bottom lands went into the courts.

The reasons why men will not become very agitated over the Yuma proposition is that there appears to be no oil land involved.

"In last week's issue of the Monitor," says the Maud Monitor, of Maud, Okla., "we made an error in the price charged for a haircut at Horace Pate's barbershop. Mr. Pate is charging 35 cents for haircuts, instead of 25 cents. The error was ours, as Mr. Pate told us at the time we interviewed him that all haircuts would be 35 cents and all shaves 15 cents." Probably one of those gosh darned woman reporters was sent on the assignment. The Maud Monitor also tells us that "the bright lights of the city may draw in the sporty crowd, but those that stick to the good old barn lantern and help the old man care for the stock will prosper more in the long run." Nothing to these slick city chaps, by heck.

It is about time the gentlemen concerned in the proposed purchase of the East Gurley ball grounds begin their work, if they are to save this piece of land for the use of the younger folks. We understand the need of a recreation ground and advise serious consideration of the problem. If the land can be bought at a reasonable price, and it is understood such is possible, it ought to be put out of the way of building; there is plenty of land in smaller parcels upon which this city can expand.

Police report of an attempted hold-up of a jeweler named Sapo records that the alleged hold-up man was taken to the hospital "suffering from a bullet wound received in the chase." Apparently medical science has made progress of which we have not been informed, but we are given to understand that the patient finds it more convenient to take his meals standing up.

Man with bullet in his head for thirty-five years is at no disadvantage, and boy with seven buckshot in his heart goes about enjoying life. Why all this fuss about disarmament?

A comet is to pass within 10,000,000 miles of the earth. That is as near as any comet comes, the astronomers say. Comets must be women when it comes to hitting things.

The total spending money of the country dropped off $1.99 during the fiscal year ending May 31, according to the treasury department, but there is still $5,983,257,293 in circulation. Somebody must have gained a lot, because ours fell off at least $7.

SALVATION ARMY BEGINS ITS WORK FOR PUEBLO SUFFERERS

Despite Difficulties, Organization That Was First to the Front Is on Job; Express Company Hastens to Aid Stricken City

(From Tuesday's Daily)

EXPRESS COMPANY WILL CARRY OFFERINGS FREE

O. H. Tucker, Prescott agent for the American Railway Express company, yesterday notified the Journal-Miner that his company "on account of the flood disaster, will accept and transport free, money and supplies for relief purposes, for Pueblo, Colo., and other offices in the devastated towns in that vicinity."

"However, the money and supplies must be addressed to the mayor of Pueblo, American Red Cross or other organized relief associations."

First to the front on the battlefield of life, the Salvation Army of southern California and Arizona has begun gathering reinforcements to back up its heroic members working in the flood districts of Colorado.

Last Saturday, though one-half of his force had been drowned and a member of his advisory board at Pueblo also lost in the flood, Colonel Davis, commanding the Colorado division of the Salvation Army, organized two relief squads, one on either side of the flood area, purchased a carload of food and medical supplies in Denver, and with the waters still rising, carried the Salvation Army flag into the disaster-stricken region.

Brigadier C. R. Boyd, divisional commander for southern California and Arizona, on Tuesday turned over to Commissioner Adam Gifford, western commander of the Salvation Army, $3,000 for immediate relief from southern California. Commissioner Gifford, who arrives in the flood area today, will take personal command of the entire converging resources and personnel of the Salvation Army assembled from California, Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, Montana and other western states which have been ordered to send their contributions to Denver.

"The Salvation Army is particularly well equipped and adapted to give the relief that is needed at Pueblo," said Brigadier Boyd, "for our forces are organized along military lines, know how to take orders, are trained in first aid and relief work, can make a dollar go farther than any other organization and can guarantee that 100 cents of every dollar contributed will go directly into relief work."

"I have directed, in conjunction with Commissioner Gifford, that every corps in southern California and Arizona immediately take steps to secure contributions to add to this fund. The governor of Colorado estimates a need for $20,000,000 to effect substantial relief. These American citizens in a neighboring state are in more acute distress, more serious danger than the people of any nation or region on earth and America which has relieved the starving in Asia and the sick and unclad in Europe, surely, with even more kindly hearts and liberal hands, will minister to its own people."

"Subscriptions may be sent to Salvation Army headquarters, 130 South Broadway, Los Angeles, marked 'flood relief work,' or turned in to any corps headquarters in southern California or Arizona, from which they will be relayed each day to field headquarters at Denver."

ENGINEERS OF CITY DISCUSS CHAPTER AIMS

Support of Licensing Law Advocated Despite Its Faults at First Regular Meeting of New Organization

(From Tuesday's Daily)

Support of engineers, members of the chapter and association of the recently-organized Prescott chapter of the American Association of Engineers, for the state engineer's licensing law, passed by the last legislature, was advocated at the first regular monthly meeting of the association, held Saturday night in the chamber of commerce rooms here. This support was advocated in spite of the fact that the consensus of opinion of the meeting was to the effect that the new law is faulty in many respects, and could be greatly improved in the interest of engineers and of the public.

Other business at the meeting consisted of the reading by the secretary of several communications from the district secretary, including the report of the delegate of the southwestern district to the national convention at Buffalo.

Recent previous meetings of the Prescott chapter have been devoted to details of perfecting the organization, election of officers, appointment of committees, etc.

Officers of the new chapter are: Homer R. Wood, president; J. William Waara, first vice-president; R. E. Chambers, second vice-president; O. M. Wold, secretary; and L. E. Smith, treasurer.

Arrangement of regular monthly luncheons or other entertainments, where not only members of the organization, but visitors also, will be welcomed, was proposed as a means of encouraging a get-together spirit among engineers here, and particularly among members of the organization. One of the purposes of the organization is to acquaint the public with the true position of the engineer in relation to matters affecting public welfare and private enterprise.

In accordance with the constitution and by-laws of the Prescott chapter, regular meetings are to be held every second Saturday of each month. The next regular monthly meeting of the chapter will be held in the rooms of the chamber of commerce Saturday evening, July 9, at 8 o'clock.

PIONEER OF THE PERRY EXPLOIT PASSES BEYOND

Comrade of those naval heroes who, under Commodore Perry, created Japan to the world and opened what is now the most ardent question in California, John G. Green was a pioneer of the pioneers. Death, due to his advanced age, took John Green at the Pioneer Home last night, ending the career of the man for whom it has been said he was the last of the Perry expedition.

Green enlisted in the navy prior to 1853 when the famous Perry tour to the far east was made, and at that time, according to the custom of the country, gave a fictitious name. He called himself John Gallagher. He returned with the commodore's fleet and at San Francisco, hearing the first vague but stirring rumors from the north, deserted his ship and joined those Pacific coast rovers who made up the backbone of the gold rush to Caribou, Canada—a rush that ranked with the Klondike trek.

He was born at Providence, R. I., on June 24, 1833. He entered Arizona via the old Ehrenburg ferry in 1872. Thirty-five or forty years ago he was partner in a business in the south of the state with C. G. Powell, until recently superintendent of the state prison.

He was admitted to the Pioneer Home on April 17, 1907, and at the time of his death was one of the longest term guests at that place.

Mr. Green is survived by a daughter, a Mrs. Cates, whom the superintendent, George A. Shea, is attempting to locate. Mrs. Gates is said to live in the south of the state.

Leave for Kingman

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McLane yesterday left this city to make their home in Kingman, where McLane, who was recently admitted to the bar in this state, will practice law with the firm of Charles W. Herndon.

Mine Assessment Work Is Due July 1st

Only 19 days remain to mining men to complete assessment work on their claims. This is the correct answer to frequent inquiries occasioned by rumors that the time limit on assessment work had been extended. As the matter stands legally, assessment work on mine claims must be done before July 1st.

A bill passed by the last congress extended the time for assessment work to the first of July, 1921, the bill being signed and becoming effective just a few hours before the previous limit expired.

The notion that the time limit had again been extended grew out of the fact that several efforts to this end have been made in the present congress, at least three bills having been introduced in the two houses. Nothing has been done, however, as there seems to be a strong congressional opposition to the extension.

So, in the words of the Old Prospector, "Git on yer claims, boys, the time's sure short!"

S. J. A. SENIORS IN PLAY PLEASE LARGE AUDIENCE AT ELKS

(From Tuesday's Daily)

The play, "Don Christoval," which was presented at the Elks theater yesterday afternoon by the senior class of St. Joseph's Academy, was the beginning of the events which will mark the close of the school year. The play was presented in a pleasing manner to a large and very appreciative audience.

Edwin Lee as "Don Christoval" (Columbus), showed, in his rendition of the part, ability not found in the average amateur. At the close of the first scene he sang "Jesu Mater" in a rich baritone.

The Spanish dances, led by Andrea Bradley, lent a beautiful touch of color to the closing scene.

The senior class was assisted in the presentation of the play by undergraduates and members of the high school section of the academy. Excellent amateur work was done by those interpreting the various roles. As the son of Columbus, Richard McCormick's playing deserved much praise.

Joseph McNally and Geraldine Giroux, in the roles of King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella, held the attention of the audience throughout. Miss Giroux's portrayal of the Spanish queen was dignified and effective.

Dramatic ability and stage presence was evident in the playing of Luella Broan, as Don Juan Perez, prior of the monastery of St. M. della Rabida.

Ransom Drew successfully portrayed Don Garcia Hernandez, and the ladies of rank, played by Mildred Storey, Andrea Bradley, Mary Matli, Ethel Stringfield, Luella Broan, added grace and charm to Queen Isabella's court.

Though playing minor parts, Ruby Belle Parsons, Catherine DeFilippi, John Rathgeb, Ruth Casteel, Julia Probst, Thomas Doyle, George Burgett and Harry Waller, added much to the finish of the entire production by their excellent work.

The action of the play passed in the following scenes:

Act I. Scene 1. Court in monastery, La Rabida. Scene 2. The same. Act II. Council room in the Palace of Cordova, Spain. "To further this great enterprise I pledge my jewels."

Act III. The royal gardens. Scene 1. "Fiesta" in honor of the queen's birthday. Scene 2. The reception of Columbus at Barcelona.

The excellent music furnished during the production by the Tully sisters' orchestra added much to the production. The program presented by the Tully sisters was as follows:

1. La Paloma—Chevalier de Yrardier.
2. Spanish Dance, No. 1—Mozzkowski.
3. Elegie—Massenet Op. 10.
4. La Serenata (waltz)—D'Arcy Jazzone.
5. Valse Pathetique—Maurice Baron.
6. Panquita—Rozyn.
7. La Sorcella—Ch. Bonel Clerc.
